ABSTRACT

In this era of globalization, export activities have an increasingly important role in developing a country's economy. To ensure a smooth and successful export process, an in-depth understanding of the document requirements and related calculations is a must. This research aims to investigate the document requirements needed in the export process, as well as carry out an in-depth analysis of export calculations involving financial, tax and customs aspects. Through a literature review and data analysis approach, this research aims to provide comprehensive guidance for business players and related stakeholders in navigating the complexity of rules and regulations related to exports. It is hoped that the results of this research will provide valuable insights, strengthen compliance, and increase the efficiency of the export process, thereby encouraging sustainable economic growth.
