ABSTRACT

This research aims to develop a digital library website for the Language Study Program at Politeknik Negeri Bengkalis. The digital era has brought significant developments in various aspects of life, including education, by offering faster and easier access to information, improving learning effectiveness, and encouraging student creativity and independence. However, the Language Study Program currently only has a physical mini-library, which limits access to knowledge resources and may reduce interest in reading. This study aims to address this issue by creating a digital library that provides access to general knowledge books and a database of final projects from 2022 to the present. The focus of this study is on the development process of the website, as well as its significance to students and the department. The digital library is expected to assist students in finding important resources for their final projects and theses, as well as facilitate the department in archiving project data each year.
