CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

1.1. Background of the Study

In general, tourism can be defined as a trip taken by someone for recreation or vacation to a place that has potential and can be enjoyed. According to the Law 10 of 2009, article 1 on tourism, what is meant by "Tourism is a variety of tour activities and is supported by various facilities and services provided by the community, employers, government, and local government."

The tourism sector is important in supporting rapid economic growth in providing employment. Tourism is also as a socio-cultural development to promote the image of the nation at both the local and international levels. Tourism is also a sector that is easy to develop even a lot of tourist attractions that are owned by Indonesia and can be used as a mean of triggering the desire of domestic or foreign tourists to visit.

Riau Province is one of the fastest growing parts of Indonesia in terms of economic, population and tourism. The natural, cultural, and culinary wealth potential for the tourism industry and supported by a very strategic geographical location because it borders Malaysia and Singapore. It makes Riau Province very potential destination for tourism.

One of the destinations that has attractive objects for tourists is Rupat Island of Bengkalis Regency. Rupat Island is an island located in Malacca Street heading to Malaysia and near the busy seaport of Dumai. Rupat is popular with its tourism attractions for both natural and cultural. There are some beautiful beaches such as Ketapang Beach, Lapin Beach, and Teluk Rhu Beach is North Rupat. Besides, there are also interesting events such as Mandi Safar and Zapin Api (Fire Dance) and also some other attractive objects such as Tiang Api (Lighthouse) and Banana Boats. These tourism attractions can attract the tourists not only for local but also the international, not only for the adults but also for the children. For children, this destination especially the beaches, are very interesting because there are same facilities such as banana boats, rubber rings, etc. Unfortunately, these interesting destinations are not yet promoted well for the international tourists, especially for the children since there is no certain promotional items that can promote Rupat Island to the children tourists.

Based on the above phenomenon, the writer is interested to do the research entitled "The Making of Travel Guide Book of Rupat Island for Kids." The product of the research is expected to provide information about tourism attractions in Rupat Island, especially for children.

CHAPTER II

REVIEW OF RELATED LITERATURE

2.1. Related Theory

2.1.1. The Nature of Tourism

Tourism is a journey that is carried out only for recreation or entertainment in a place or country, and returns to its original place of residence.

Koen Meyers in Somawati et al (2020), tourism is a travel activity undertaken temporarily from the original place of residence to the destination area for reasons not to settle down or earn a living but just for fun, satisfy curiosity, free time or vacation time as well as other purposes.

Franklin and Crang in Wiweka et al (2001) in their writing titled "The trouble with tourism and travel theory" explicitly state that the main problem of tourism knowledge is that tourism as a social phenomenon (practical) has grown and developed so rapidly beyond the development of tourism within the theoretical sphere, considering the interest of research on the field is still relatively new. Without any doubt, tourism has grown so rapidly, both as a social phenomenon (practical) and as a "new" group of knowledge (theoretical), and as an object of study or research (Hall Wiweka, 2005: 126).

From the description above it can be concluded that tourism is a journey from one place to another which is carried out individually or in groups, as an effort to find balance or harmony and happiness with the environment in the social, cultural, natural and scientific dimensions.

2.1.2. The Nature of Promotion

Promotion is the most important activity to let people know more about our products or something that being promoted. Each institution or company should be able to determine what kind of promotional tools used in order to achieve success in sales and attracts consumers.

According to Tjiptono in Krisna et al (2015, p.387), promotion is an element of the marketing mix that focuses on promotional efforts, persuading, and reminding consumers of the company's brands and products. According to Buchory and Saladin in Aris Jatmika Diyatma (2017) promotion is one of the elements in the company mix that is utilized to persuade, and remind about the company's products.

Previously, the rights of children have been stated in Law No. 35 of 2014 concerning Child Protection. The basic rights that must be owned by children are playing, creating, participating, relating to parents when separated, being free to gather and associate, living with parents, and have the right to live, grow and develop. nurturing, raising, and educating children is a noble task that cannot be separated from various obstacles and challenges. Many efforts have been made by parents and education to seek and equip themselves with knowledge related to the child's environment in order to create children's growth.

Based on the explanation above, it can be concluded that promotion is very useful for any business, including tourism. Furthermore, the product of this study is expected to become one of useful promotional items to promote tourism of Rupat Island to the international tourists, especially to the children.

2.1.3. Tourism for Kids

Schools are indeed the main place to gain knowledge and learn the values of life for children. However, children also need other activities to support their maximum growth and development. These outdoor activities make children's holidays an important activity that should be done regularly. According to law 23 of 2002, Article 11 concerning the right of children to get tourism services, "Every child has the right to rest and take advantage of free time, socialize with children of the same age, play, have recreation, and be creative according to his interests, talents, and intelligence level for the sake of self-development".

Going on vacation will help children know the outside world. Normally, children's activities are not only at home and school environment but also out side. Natural, cultural and historical themed attractions will provide a lot of new knowledge for children without making them feel bored because the new atmosphere at the vacation spots will increase children's curiosity in a fun way.

In the tourism sector, attention must be paid to market segmentation, especially segmentation based on age. According to Schiffman & Kanuk in Sari, et al (2021) age is a potential market segment in tourism because every age has different travel needs.

Furthermore, Kotler and Keller in Sintha (2011:42) stated that in general there are four factors that motivate consumers' behavior to purchase, they are Cultural, Social, Personal and Psycological factors. In case of tourism, these factors also motivate people to decide to go for travels.

One of social factors that motivate consumen behavior to purchase is the family factor. Not rarely that family, including children, motivate people (parents) to buy something or to go somewhere.

Based on the above theories, it can be said that the need for travel is not always coming from the adults (parents), but it also comes from the children. The children are very possible to become the motivation for the parents to go for tourism. Therefore, tourism promotion should not only segmented to the adults but also for the children.

In this study used writing to make a travel guide book for kids. This contents of the study explain about tourism in Rupat Island. There are some tourism object in this study such as Ketapang Beach, Lapin Beach, and Teluk Rhu Beach is North Rupat. Besides, there are also interesting events such as Mandi Safar and Zapin Api (Fire Dance) and also some other attractive objects such as Tiang Api (Lighthouse) and Banana Boat.

2.1.4. The Nature of Travel Writing

Some people will look for the information first before deciding to go to tourism destination. The information include the way to get there, the accomodation, what to see, what to do, what to buy, and etc. Those information can be gotten by watching television program about travelling, asking other tourists' experiences, and reading travel writings. Moreover, travel writings not only can be found on the internet, but also available in a book, like travel guide books or the other travel writing books.

According to Tathagati (2013), a travel writing is a specific writing to a place or a region. There are writing genres of travel writing started from descriptive to narrative, literature to journalism, and fiction to non fiction. However, travel guide book not only for adult or teeneger but also for children.

Based on Children's Book Insider, LLC (2012) describes that 11 steps to write children's book, there are:

1. Get the Right Mindset. 7. Revise Again.

2. Choose Your Age Group. 8. Choose Your Path to Publication.

3. Develop Your Idea. 9. Research the Market.

4. Write Your First Draft. 10. Submit Your Manuscript.

5. Start Revising. 11. Give Yourself an Unfair Advantage.

6. Get Feedback.

The writer concludes that travel writing is kind of writing which describes about places specifically to help promoting a tourism destination in Rupat Island and creating a positive image to the reader, especially for children.

2.2. Related Study

There have been some related studies conducted by some researches about travel guide books. First, Firmansyah Noor (2018) conducted a research entitled "The Design of Guidebook for Four Priority of Tourism Destination of Central Sulawesi as a Media Promotion Tool for Department of Central Sulawesi Tourism". The purpose of the research was to create an informative, attractive, and persuasive travel guide book that can be easily understood by the readers. The result of the research showed that Department of Central Sulawesi Tourism has not done any promotion activities and not adopting media promotion to promote the four priority of tourism destinations.

The second study is the study done by Putri, et al (2014) entitled "The Use of Travel Guidebooks by Tourist Visiting Yogyakarta". This research aimed to know to what extend tourists use travel guidebooks for their visit to Yogyakarta, as one of tourism destination in Indonesia. This research was conducted by taking tourist who has been to or during their visit to Yogyakarta. Qualitative interviews with three travel experts precede this research in order to gather the purpose of using travel guidebooks by tourist visiting Yogyakarta. The results are 31 purposes of using travel guidebooks. After conducting factor analysis and reliability tests, seven factors comprising 26 statements were extracted which are: functional needs, forward-looking needs, learning needs, autonomy needs, tension reduction needs, security needs, and objectification needs.

Different from the studies above, this study focuses on creating an English Travel Guide Book for the need of international tourists, especially for the children.

2.3. Related Product

There are many products related with this study. The first related product is a travel book entitled "A Guide to Traveling with Kids".

This book was written by Tack Lee and Ping Lo. The authors hoped that this book can share experiences with readers in the hope of minimizing the stress and anxiety experienced when traveling with children.

This book was written in English and was published in October, 2020. This travel guide book for kids contains 139 pages. The pages are colorful and have dimensions of 6.14 x 0.32 x 9.21 inches.

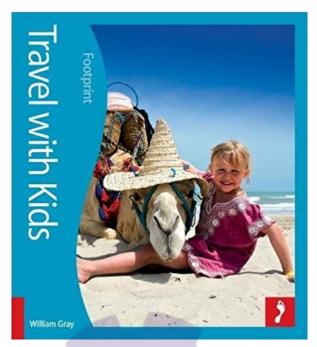

Kids/dp/B08LNTGJTH

The second product is the book entitled Travel with Kids. This travel guide book was written by William Gray. This book is very inspirational and informative for the need of children tourists. According to the writer, the readers will find plenty of advice, encouragement and reassurance to plan a lifetime of family holidays throughout the world. You won't find exhaustive directories of family-friendly hotels and restaurants or laborious lists of post offices and tourist information centers.

This book will help the readers make the right decisions, getting it right for different age groups, budgets and styles of travel. This book was written in English and was published in June, 2012. It contains 352 pages.

The difference between the above books and the book to be created is that this travel guide book is going to introduce tourism attractions in Rupat Island since there is no such a book to promote those tourism attractions writen in English yet, especially for the need of children tourists.
